Message from CBO's Desk for Emerging Trends in BE/BTech Education in India-Tamil Nadu report

VIVEK JAIN

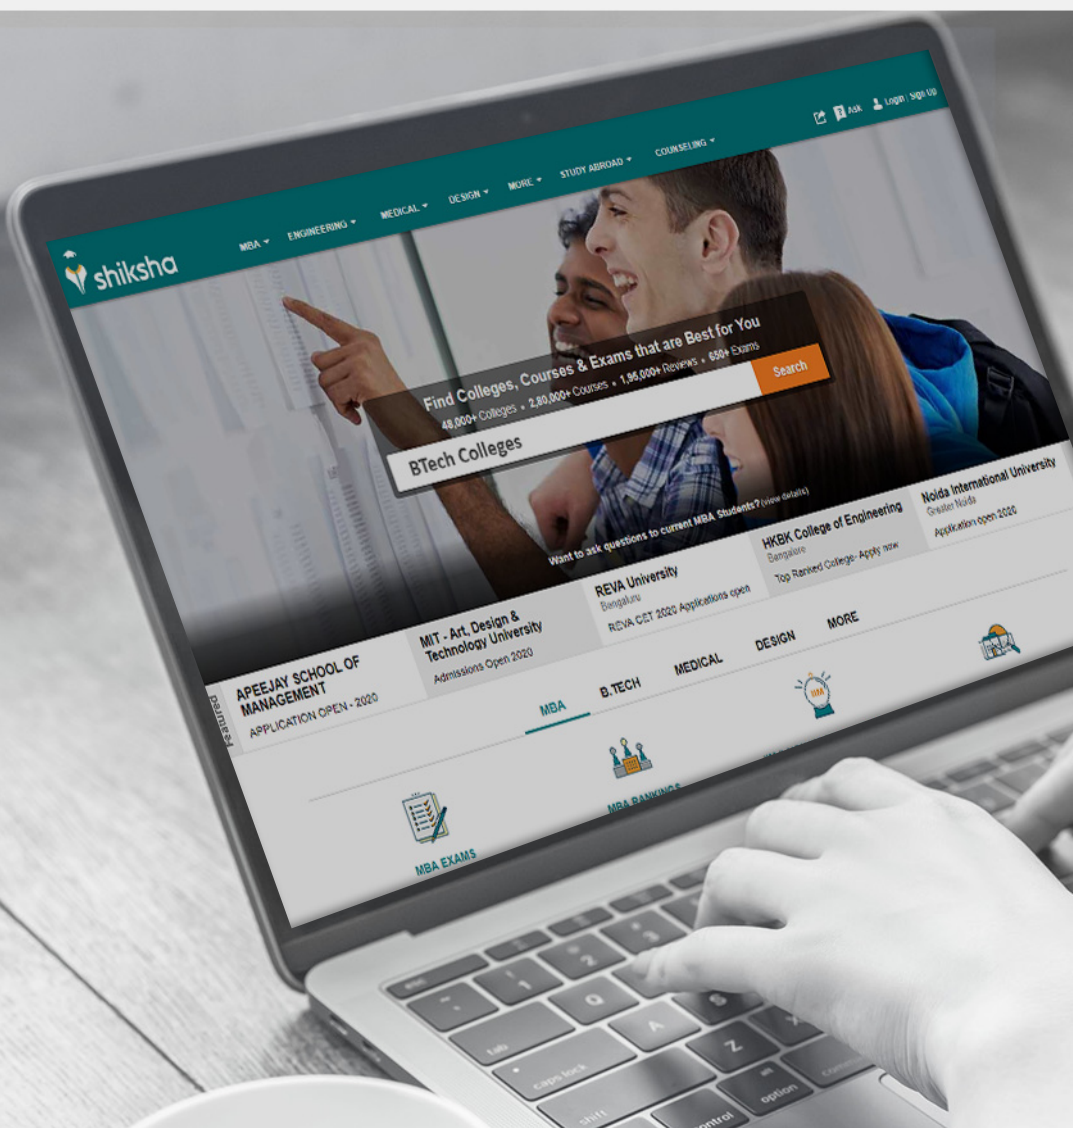

Chief Business Officer - Shiksha

India, which today is touted as the third largest higher education hub in the world, has come a long way in the past one decade, driven by innovation in curriculum and teaching pedagogy. Indian higher education system has grown manifold in this past decade with an aim to reach 32% Gross Enrolment Ratio (GER) by the end of 2020. Until 2019, this number stood at 26.3%, making the 2020 target look achievable. Among the many emerging and growing streams of education, one of the prime that have gained momentum is Engineering. Students who complete Engineering from India are the most in-demand not just within the country but abroad as well.

To give acceleration to this growing interest among students in the Engineering stream, a large share of Indian higher education institutions offer undergraduate Engineering courses, including Bachelor of Engineering (BE) and Bachelor of Technology (BTech).

The first edition of our Emerging Trends report on Education in India aims to provide an overview of some of the promising streams that are gaining traction among Indian students aspiring to pursue higher education in India. This initiative by Shiksha provides insights to students and institutions to uncover the deep learning based on behaviour and preferences. The basis of these insights were students' interest, their browsing and search patterns on Shiksha platform, captured by our internal core analytics system.

In report "Emerging Trends in BE/BTech Education in India-Tamil Nadu Edition", you can get an overview of the top specialisations offered in Tamil Nadu, with a particular focus on top locations in the state for students who want to pursue BE/BTech. The report also focuses on top universities and colleges preferred by students when searching for BE/BTech institutions in Tamil Nadu.

Preface

India is the third largest higher education destinations in the world with over 45,000 institutions.

Curious to know which are some of the top higher education destinations in India, attracting students from various locations? Want to know which are the most preferred universities and cities to pursue higher education?

As India's leading higher education selection website, Shiksha's deep-core analytics bring forth what students are looking for, and showcase their preferences and behaviour.

The report is designed for students to make a well-informed decision on what are the best locations to pursue Engineering in India. It analyses response received from over 2 lakh Indian students who have shown interest in studying in Tamil Nadu.
