

NEET MDS Question Paper 2025 with Solutions (Memory-Based)

Go through the NEET MDS memory-based question paper 2025 with answers below.

Q. Which lungs cells give rise to heart failure cells?

A. Macrophages

Q. Casal's necklace is associated with which Vitamin deficiency?

A. Niacin

Q. Which vessel lies between the roots of lower molars?

A. Middle meningeal artery

Q. Recommended working force to be applied for using CPITN probe.

A. Less than 20 grams

Q. Which mineral is considered as a caries-promoting mineral?

A. Selenium

Q. Which type of salivary glands are Ebner's glands?

A. Serous

Q. Which oral potentially malignant disorder carries the highest risk of malignant transformation?

A. Erythroplakia

Q. Cri-du-chat syndrome is related to the deletion of which part of a chromosome?

A. Chromosome 5 pR

Q. What is the primary function of pulmonary surfactant?

A. Prevention of alveolar collapse

Q. What is the main purpose of using oxidized cellulose in dentistry?

A. Styptic agent

Q. What is the appropriate antidote for overdose or consumption of 10 tablets of paracetamol?

A. N-acetylcysteine

Q. Which space maintainer is to be indicated in case of primary second molar missing bilaterally in a 5-year old child?

A. Lingual arch

Q. What is the disadvantage of inlay wax?

A. High thermal expansion

Q. Which nerve fibres are primarily responsible for transmitting referred pain?

A. C fibres

Q. Barefoot doctors indicate what?

A. Community participation or Community Health Workers

Q. What is likely to be the benign tumor of the jaw?

A. Fibroma

Note: These questions have been compiled from various sources including test takers, coaching institutes and various experts discussing paper on their social media platforms.*

